We need a leader who will advocate for our schools.

I benefited from a strong public education. My wife and I moved to Alameda for its great schools, and my family values the education our children have received at our neighborhood elementary school.

I served on the Board of Directors for Alternatives in Action (AIA), a non-profit that works with youth who have leadership potential and prepares them for college, career and community. AIA oversees an after school enrichment program, preschool, and public high school centered in the West End of Alameda.

Alameda is the lowest funded school district in the county and that's locked into state law. My family and I are part of a lawsuit, Robles Wong v. California, to force a change to the state's outdated formula and ensure that Alameda receives its fair share of state funding.

I am committed, as your Councilmember, to building a partnership with our schools and am proud to be endorsed by a majority of our School Board.
